

Freyja the most worshiped of the Norse Goddesses, quickly became my go to for prayer and daily worship. Of course, Þórr and Óðinn were the first Gods I gave oath too, I soon learned that one of the characteristics I was in search of was the power and wisdom of Óðinn's magick, which I soon learned was taught to him by Freyja. As a Norse Vitki it is my responsibility to connect as closely as I can to the Gods, and Freyja having taught Óðinn the magick of the Völva, so it seemed the obvious choice to study, pray and worship her. Freyja is an embodiment of the Sacred Feminine but also a symbol of strength, she is a strong woman and balances the masculine and feminine aspects of herself and in return will help to build on the Masculine and Feminine in all of us, as long as we stay true and focused on our worship. This balance in the Magickal world is one of the most important aspects in the Spirit and Physical world. So now I pray to Freyja, that is what I feel and focus most of my attention on, first and foremost, the importance of our sacred feminine that we sometimes forget. And beauty as well, the world is filled with many beauties and must not be overlooked and Freyja is the most beautiful of them all.

A morning prayer to Freyja.

“Hail Freyja. Keeper of Brisingamen,
Wielder of Seiðr, Teacher of Magicks.
Goddess of beauty, love and lust.
Ruler of Fólkvangr, Mistress of the Slain.
With your fiery hair and sky-blue eyes,
Guide me and my fellow kinsman, so that we may be strong in times of struggle.

Let us not forget our sacred Feminine, or Masculine. May we bring new beauty to this world? May you use me as your instrument?

And teach me the powers you hold sway.

- Hail Freyja.”
